HOW TO READ THIS REPORT

The PBiR Minute-by-Minute Thermometer Breakdown

This report is built so the story comes first and the detail comes second. The opening section is the Thermometer Breakdown — a read of the game one minute at a time. For every minute you see each team's PBiR impact, exactly what they did to earn it, and the running score on the scoreboard.

The color is the thermometer. It tells you, at a glance, who won each minute by PBiR:

GREEN

Won that minute

RED

Lost that minute

YELLOW

Tied that minute

Green is up, red is down, yellow is even. The team labels (and their fixed top/bottom rows) tell you who; the color tells you how the minute went.

WHAT EACH COLUMN MEANS

Min PBiR — that team's impact score for that single minute (plus or minus). The 14 stat columns — the events behind it (made shots, rebounds, assists, steals, turnovers, fouls, and more). Game Score — the actual points on the scoreboard at the end of that minute, building to the final.

After you've read the game minute by minute, the report moves into the numbers — the deeper breakdown, the rankings, and the analysis.

THE GAME VERDICT

The Game Verdict

The whole report in one page. A coach, player, scout, or sponsor should understand this game in 60 seconds — then turn the page for the evidence.

The team that owned the second half won.
San Antonio jumped out early, but New York took over after the break and protected the ball down the stretch.

Why New York won	Evidence	What it means
Second half	57 pts vs 40	New York flipped the game after halftime and never gave it back
Ball security	8 turnovers vs 13	Five fewer giveaways — the single biggest swing on the PBIr
Playmaking	20 assists vs 16	New York moved it; San Antonio leaned on isolation
Disruption	8 steals vs 4	The Knicks turned defense into transition
Shot quality	39-94 (41%) vs 32-89 (36%)	Better looks, fewer empty trips

- Why New York won
1. Owned the second half by 17
 2. Only 8 turnovers all night
 3. Balanced impact — Hart +46, Towns +32
 4. 20 assists, ball never stuck
 5. Won the possession battle late

- Why San Antonio came up short
1. 13 turnovers handed away possessions
 2. Wembanyama 26 pts but on 6-21 shooting
 3. Fox -10 — cold from the floor
 4. Hot start didn't survive halftime
 5. Lost the bench and the late game

ONE-SENTENCE VERDICT
San Antonio started faster, but New York protected the ball and won the second half going away.
